MONDAY.

Important News From Europe The arrival of the Hammenia and Bohe fon, with London dates of the 4th and 7th, places us in possession of important informa-tion respecting Garibaldi, who seems to be in possession of Palermo, and the Neapolitan troops on the eve of quitting the city. The enthusiasm for Geribaldi's spreading, and all Sicily appears destined to fall into his hands.

The Superior Court Dispensation.

It will not be denied that the first essential quality of morality is justice; therefore, any morality which exhibits itself in lajustice is spurious, and it is doubtful if any immorality can be worse than injustice in a cancy must have some opinion on this ques judicial tribunal. The learned say that the word in the Scriptures, which is translated a test in his appointment? Then a judicial "righteousness," means justice; therefore, to question on a great question of popular affect righteousness without justice would be a contradiction. The immorality developed in the case of Stewart vs. Warren, in the Superior Court, although lamentable, was, as Judge Storer stated, scarcely involved in the question at issue, and his exaggerated denunciation of the offense of the parties, if it had any weight at all, could only have had the effect to introduce improper considerations into the minds of the jury.

A woman sued a man for money deposite with him. They had lived as husband and wife, six years, without legal sanction; but, as she claims, the connection began under promise of marriage. The man deserted, and she sued for this money, being her earnings as an actress. She seems also to have supported him. The Judge declared in his charge to the jury, that "neither of the parties was entitled to any sympathy;" that "such an exhibition of human depravity has never been developed in the Court-house;" "the moral sense of the community has been outraged."

Is it true that this is the worst exhibition of human depravity that has ever been made in the Court-house? Of all the atrocious criminals, hung and unhung, in this city, can this impress the mind of any same man as the worst exhibition of depravity? It is an osnant virtue, very much at the expense of truth and justice; and injustice ought to be quite as discreditable to a Judge, as the want of chastity to a woman.

By what code of morality is a woman, who has been robbed, declared not entitled to any sympathy in a court of justice, because she has lapsed from virtue?-which declaration meant in this case that she was not entitled to justice, for it could only have had that effect. Not the code of the Old Dispensation, certainly, for Solomon judged a case between two harlots, and decided entirely upon sympathy, and distinguished his judicial wisdom thereby. Suppose that Judge Storer had presided in that case: the merits would have been lost in the Judges virtue; he would have declared that "neither of the parties was entitled to any sympathy;" that "neither party is entitled to the interference of a court in aid of what is to be regarded not only as an unlawful, but an immoral act;" that "so far as there was any demand by this plaintiff that grew out of this unworthy, immoral and illegal connection, I can not be sustained;" that "the moral sense of the community had been outraged;" and Judge Storer would have healed it by sending both the women "up for thirty days," and the child to the lel, inasmuch as Christ was called upon to judge the woman's fault; while Judge Storer justice, and, as she was the plaintiff, this extra-moral view of the case would have deprived her of her claim, for the benefit of the man whom she had trusted. This is the way that Judge Storer would have vindicated the morality of an "outraged" community.

The woman alleges a promise of marriage. Had this been fulfilled the money would have become her husband's, and she could have made no legal claim to it. She probably deposited her money with him in this expectation; and her claim for it was made because he deserted her; yet this just judge said "The jury might well ask themselves whether such claim would ever have appeared, unless a reparation or some difficulty occurred to induce it." So it would seem that for men to inveigle women out of their money by promise of marriage, is legitimate business, provided they inveigle them into an illicit cobabitation also. By this administration of law Judge Storer would heal the "outraged moral sense of the community." The more we examine this "outraged' moral code, the more we find it unlike any, either Hebrew or Christian, and the more we find it like that barbarous morality which exhausts its chief energies in magnifying a woman's loss of chastity into the greatest of crimes; and which imagines that its virtue is high in proportion to the condemnation and penalty which it inflicts on a woman's fault or misfortune.

The Vacancy in the United States Supreme It is said that Judge Black will be pointed to the Supreme Bench by President Buchanun, in piece of Judge Bantels, of Vir-ginia. He does not live in the District, and in other respects in unfitted for the place. If nominated, the Senate ought to reject him.

As to Judge Black's fitness, we infer from the columns of the Enquirer that it regards Douglas as one of the greatest men in the nation. If that is the case, Judge Black, as compared with Douglas in the reply to his Harper article, and in the subsequent con troversy, can not seem to the Enquirer not fit for the Supreme Bench for want of abil-

His unfitness, probably, is on acity. count of his opinion that a Territory can not exclude slavery. But does not the Enguirer agree that this is a judiquestion? And when judicially cial decided did not the Ohio Democracy agree to submit? Whoever is appointed to the va-Will the Enquirer make that opinion power, which a judicial decision is to make a finality and a part of the Constitution of the United States, is really a question to be agitated and decided by politicians in the appointment of Judges, and the Constitution is entirely in the power of the President and Senate. This, really, is bringing round a Constitutional Government into an oligarchy, by a very short circult. But Judge Black's opinions on the power of a Territory over slavery are the same as Judge Taney and a majority of the Court, declared in the Dred Scott case; so the En quirer's objection is equally against the Court, This certainly does not show that respect for the Judiciary which the Democracy have recently enjoyed, with the zeal peculiar to new converts; nor does it promise a favorable working of the plan for taking political questions out of political agitation, and making finalities of them by putting them into the Constitution by a judicial decision.

Bending Pillibuster Twigs.

The New York Independent states that the Ohio School Commissioner has ordered for the School Libraries six hundred copies of the Life of Garibaldi, written by himself, and translated by Theodore Dwight.

The Commissioner has been subjected to much enlightened criticism in his book selections, and we might as well try our hand, Not long ago it went the rounds of the papers that he had purchased several hundred copies of Rev. H. M. Field's Summer Pictures, and the enlightened journals of this city, and many provincial ones, innocently spoke of it as if he had been guilty of the enormity of buying pictures for the libraries. Such is the light and knowledge which a free press sheds abroad in the land!

Garibaldi is either a hero or a bandit, de pending on his success; either a liberator or a fillibuster, yet to be ascertained. It is rather soon to write his life; or perhaps that of William Walker should precede it in the school libraries; and some one else might be better qualified than he to write an impartial history of himself.

The Poor Japanese.

Among the preparations made for killing off the Japanese, at New York, by what is called with a ghastly facetiousness, "American hospitality," the papers state that "Two pianos, said to be the finest in America, have been placed in the Embassadors' rooms, and two of our best artistes have been engaged to perform on them during their stay."

Interesting Account-Origin of the Japan-

It is not according to the Christian code of morality, certainly. Christ was a person of nearly as high morality as Judge Storer, but he did not show it, when the adulterous woman was brought before him, by declaring that "Such as exhibition of human depravity had never been developed," that "The moral sense of the community had been outraged," and that the woman "Was entitled to no sympathy." Doubtless Judge Storer would have thought that Christ's way of disposing of that case showed great looseness of morals in Him, and the Judge would have been prepared with a basket fall of stones, suxious to begin. As this moral code seems to be unlike the Bible or the Christian Dispensation, we suppose it must be a new revelation.

Wesare aware that the cases are not parallel, inasmuch as Christ was called upon to The feet is, that, to the Japanese, a China-dominion.

The fact is, that, to the Japanese, a Chinaman is the most worthless and contemptible object in Nature. The Chinese have, however, a fauciful legend in which they find an irresistible argument upon their side of the question at issue before the Court, and his judgment upon it being an exercise of pure benevolence.

To persons whose moral faculties are not overthrown by the necessity for exhibiting their own virtue, the most "outraging" feature in this case, was the man's desertion of a woman who had lived with him as a wife, and supported him for six years, and of whom the judge said: "It is very evident that the woman must have had a strong affection for this man, and that she relied on him." But the Judge's intemperate denunciations of the immoral flagrancy of the parties could only injure her, and sid the man to escape with her earnings; for the only impression which it was calculated to make on the jury was, that neither party was worthy to come into Court and demand justice, and, as she was the plaintiff, this dominion.

The fact is, that, to the Japanese, a China-

The Poor Japanese and their Persecutions.

The rivalry existing between Philadelphia and New York was never more amusingly upparent than row. The Japanese Embassy is the bone of contention. New York is pouty because they were not permitted to visit that city first. The reporters for the New York papers, who attend on their movements, unite in representing the reception of the Orientals in Baltimore and Philadelphia, as disgusting in the extreme to the Japanese. They were worried and bored by the tedium of the receptions given them; insulted by blackguasds, frightened by mobe distressed by the peering and unrestrained curiosity of the ladies, and generally exhausted by the brawls, fights, quasi-riots, jeers, jokes, and josts of the Baltimore and Philadelphia rabble.

They were allowed no peace by day and no quiet by night. Taking the New York accounts, it is a wonder that the entire Embassy is not in the hands of the undertakers. Philadelphia papers will repay this maliciciousness with interest, when the Embassy risit Gotham. Their temper is sufficiently acrid already, and we may look for racy reports of the doings in New York. As a preclude, the following from the Philadelphia Bulletia is sufficiently pugnent:

"It is fortunate for the Japanese and for this country that they did not first visit New York, for they would have been so disgusted that they would never have ventured any further, and would have gone home with a shocking impression of American barbarism. By visiting other cities first, they have got some idea of our progress in civilization; and if they have been exposed to rudeness; it will the better prepare them for the brutalities they will suffer when they reach New York." XXXVII CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION. [Conclusion of Saturday's House Proceedings.] WASHINGTON, June 17.

WARDINGTON, June 17.

HOUSE—Mr. Stratton made the opening speech in favor of the committee's report.

Mr. Chrisman, the contestant, and Mr. Anderson severally addressed the House in support of their respective petitions.

Mr. Stratton gave notice that he would demand a vote on Monday at one o'clock.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union.

Mr. Loomis made a speech against the first protest.

The House then, at four o'clock P. M., took a recess till seven o'clock.

EVENING SESSION. The House reassembled at seven P. M. The Senate's amendment was adopted, providing that the extra documents ordered by the House, not already executed, shall be printed by the House Printer, but nothing shall be allowed for composing, when the same document has been first ordered to be printed by copies of the Agricultural Report ordered by the House.

Mr. Phelps and Mr. Pendleton severally said that the Senate Printer, under the law, was entitled to the job.

Mr. Maynard remarked that it was nothing more than to give printing plunder belonging to the Senate Printer to the House Printer, and that the former would have just claims for damages against the Government. It was said by several gentlemen, that the Senate Printer can print all the copies wanted in thirty days, and that he is only waiting for the order to print them, having the stereotype plates ready.

The Senate's amendment to the $21,000,000 loan bill was read.

The Senate's amendment to the $21,000,000 loan bill was read.

Mr. Milison remarked that Mr. Sherman had recently complained, that the Senate had added $8,000,000 in amendments to one of the appropriation bills, and had provided no means for the payment of the same. The proposition now before them was an answer to that complaint. They were not now prepared, however, the House not being full, to act on a measure of this magnitude.

Mr. Shetman replied that they had now reached the real difficulty of the season. They should stand firm and not allow the Senate palpably to violate the Constitution for all revenue measures must originate in the House. The proposition pending was a revenue bill in the most offensive form.

Mr. Millson said that such a proposition was never held to be a revenue measure. It did not, however, originate in the Senate but in the House itself, and was proposed by the Senate as an amendment.

After further debate Mr. Montgomery offered an amendment to revise the Tariff Act of 1843, which was ruled out of order. The loan amendment was disagreed to anothe House adjourned.

From Baltimore.

From Baltimere.

Baltimore, June 16.—The city is rapidly filling up. The Douglas and Anti-Douglas feeling is intensified in opposition since the Charleston Convention. Several warm controversies, nearly leading to personal collisions, have already been had between prominent men on the several sides.

The Douglas men calculate on an increased vote for him at all events on the third or fourth ballot, and it seems certain they will sold their own on the earliest ballot.

A notice posted at the hotels stating that delegations desiring admission to the hall of the Convertion will apply to Caleb Cushing to-morrow, renders it absolutely certain that Mr. Cushing has decided to take the power of issuing cards into his own hands, and will give admission to the seced-ing delegations.

If the seceders remain in denying the right of the majority to bind their action, then the contestants from Louisians, Georgia and Alabama will apply for a hearing, and an effort will be made to admit them.

The main difficulty in carrying out this programme appears now to be the vote of New York. Mr. Corning and others are understood to oppose the resolution binding derstood to oppose the resolution binding the action of the delegates present, and a vote in the delegation on this point will be very close; indeed, probably thirty-saven to thirty-three, if it should not be beaten.

It is now evident that not less than 20,000 strangers will be present. The trains on Monday morning will bring vast accessions to the number already here. It is confidently expected that whatever the programme may be by which the result is reached, that Douglas will be nominated, and that the greater portion of the South will put an opposition ticket in the field. Rumor points to the Hon. Caleb Cushing as the nominee for the South for President, with the Hon. Jeff. Davis for Vice-President, on the ground that the nomination for the Presidency is immaterial; but that the Vice-President is important in the event of the election going to the Senate. The Committee will meet at 10 o'clock Monday morning. ay morning.

Overland Mail News.

Spaisurell, Mo., June 17.—The Overland Mail-coach, with San Francisco advices to May 28, arrived here at half-past seven o'clock this evening.

San Francisco, May 28.—The Pony Express with St. Louis dates to May 20, is due at Carson Valley this morning, but on account of Indian hostilities on the route, for two hundred miles beyond that point, it is feared the express has been cut off. The last express left here on Friday, the 25th, but we are not yet advised whether it passed the dangerous part of the route on its way eastward.

During nearly all of the past week it has rained incessantly.

The accounts from Carson Valley, up to the 27th, represent that about 1,500 Indians remain in the vicinity of Pyramid Lake, and that 600 hunters, under Col. Hays, and 200 United States troops, under Capt. Stewart, had gone out to attack them in front and rear.

W. W. Finney, the agent of the Pony Express, called upon us this morning, and gave us some sad news respecting the perilous condition of that enterprise. He had just received a telegraphic dispatch from Carson City, which states that the station at Simpson Bank was burned on Monday last, and that the station-keeper and all the animals are missing. The dispatch further informs Mr. Finney that the man who came with the last express from Reese River, was forced by fear of the Indians, to lie by for 36 hours at Smith Creek Station, otherwise the express would have arrived at Carson City in less than six days, and though the express leaving here on the 18th, had duly started on the perilous journey, there was doubt as to who would be the succeeding expressman with the letters which left here yesterday.

Naples, June 5.—A dispatch of the 3d says that four thousand insurgents, having several pieces of cannon, attacked Catania on the 1st, and were badly repulsed after a combat of eight hours. The insurgents were dispersed, losing three guns and two flags. The city was since declared in a state of siege. ARRIVAL OF THE HAMMONIA.

New York. June 17.—The steamer Hammonia arrived to-day, bringing London papers of June 4, but nothing later from Liverpool than the Niagara's advices, she having left Southampton immediately on arrival of the early morning train from London.

Advices from Sicily announce that the Neapolitan army had capitulated to Garibaldi. The articles which were signed on board the English war steamer Hamibal between Gen. Laza and Garibaldi and the Revolutionary Committee stipulate that the Neapolitan army 25,000 strong, should quit Palermo with all bonors of war, and embark with their material on board the Neapolitan squadron. The evacuation was to commence June 4.

A most terrible and desperate fight, in which many women participated, had occurred previously at the Stradi Toledo, between Garibaldi and the Neapolitans, which resulted in the repelling of the latter, and immediate commencement of the bombardment from the Neapolitan squadron. The above news reached Paris June 2, and was fully confirmed by other dispatches received next day.

The London Times says Garibaldi is now master of this island. It is asserted that Signor Carafay had demanded a guarantee for the territory of the two Sicilies, and also intervention of maritime power. Piedmont is also asserted to protest against intervention.
